WASHINGTON, D.C. UPDATE

Federal Fiscal Year (FFY) 2007 Appropriations

The 109th Congress has reconvened after a two-week Thanksgiving Day recess to complete unfinished legislative business. The only FFY 2007 appropriations bills which have been enacted are those which fund the Departments of Defense and Homeland Security. All other Federal programs and activities have been funded temporarily through a Continuing Resolution, which expires on December 8, 2006. Before adjourning at the end of this week, Congress is expected to enact another Continuing Resolution to temporarily fund programs through February 15, 2007. Because bills do not carry over into the next session of Congress, the 110th Congress will start over on the remaining FFY 2007 appropriations bills when it convenes in January 2007. In addition to completing FY 2007 appropriations, the 110th Congress will be faced with the challenge of considering the President's emergency war supplemental appropriations request and proposed FFY 2008 Budget, which will be released in early February 2007.

We will continue to keep you advised.
